

GCSE Subject Level Conditions and Requirements for Ancient History

May 2016

Ofqual/16/5967

Contents

|  |   |
|--|---|
| Introduction.....  | 2 |
| About this document .....  | 2 |
| Requirements set out in this document.....                           | 2 |
| Summary of requirements.....   | 3 |
| Subject Level Conditions .....                                       | 4 |
| GCSE Subject Level Conditions for Ancient History .....              | 5 |
| Assessment objectives .....  | 6 |
| Assessment objectives – GCSE Qualifications in Ancient History ..... | 7 |
| Subject content (published by Department for Education).....         | 8 |

Introduction

About this document

This document (highlighted in the figure below) is part of a suite of documents which sets out the regulatory requirements for awarding organisations offering GCSE qualifications (graded from 9 to 1).

We have developed these requirements with the intention that GCSE qualifications (graded from 9 to 1) should fulfil the following purposes:

- To provide evidence of students' achievements against demanding and fulfilling content;
- To provide a strong foundation for further academic and vocational study and for employment; and
- To provide (if required) a basis for schools and colleges to be held accountable for the performance of all of their students.

Requirements set out in this document

This document sets out the GCSE Subject Level Conditions for Ancient History. These conditions will come into effect at 5.01pm on Friday 6 May 2016 for all GCSE qualifications (graded from 9 to 1) in Ancient History.

It also sets out our requirements in relation to assessment objectives – awarding organisations must comply with these requirements under Condition GCSE(Ancient History)1.2.

Appendix 1 reproduces the requirements in relation to subject content for GCSE Ancient History,<sup>1</sup> as published by the Department for Education. Awarding organisations must comply with these requirements under Condition GCSE(Ancient History)1.1.

With respect to GCSE qualifications (graded from 9 to 1) in Ancient History, awarding organisations must also comply with:

- our General Conditions of Recognition,<sup>2</sup> which apply to all awarding organisations and qualifications; and
- our GCSE Qualification Level Conditions,<sup>3</sup> and
- all relevant Regulatory Documents.<sup>4</sup>

With respect to GCSE qualifications graded from A* to G, awarding organisations must continue to comply with the General Conditions of Recognition, and the relevant Regulatory Documents.

Summary of requirements

| Subject Level Conditions               |  |
|--|--|
| GCSE(Ancient History)1 | Compliance with content requirements |

| Assessment Objectives  |
|--|
| Assessment Objectives - GCSE Qualifications in Ancient History |

| Appendix 1 – Subject content (published by Department for Education) |
|--|
| GCSE Ancient History: subject content                |

---

<sup>1</sup> www.gov.uk/government/publications/gcse-ancient-history

<sup>2</sup> www.gov.uk/government/publications/general-conditions-of-recognition

<sup>3</sup> www.gov.uk/government/publications/gcse-9-to-1-qualification-level-conditions

<sup>4</sup> www.gov.uk/guidance/regulatory-document-list

Subject Level Conditions

---

GCSE Subject Level Conditions for Ancient History

Condition GCSE(Ancient History)1

Compliance with content requirements

GCSE(Ancient History )1.1

In respect of each GCSE Qualification in Ancient History which it makes available, or proposes to make available, an awarding organisation must –

- (a) comply with the requirements relating to that qualification set out in the document published by the Secretary of State entitled ‘Ancient history GCSE subject content’,<sup>5</sup> document reference DFE-00034-2016,
- (b) have regard to any recommendations or guidelines relating to that qualification set out in that document, and
- (c) interpret that document in accordance with any requirements, and having regard to any guidance, which may be published by Ofqual and revised from time to time.

GCSE(Ancient
History)1.2

In respect of each GCSE Qualification in Ancient History which it makes available, or proposes to make available, an awarding organisation must comply with any requirements, and have regard to any guidance, relating to the objectives to be met by any assessment for that qualification which may be published by Ofqual and revised from time to time.

---

<sup>5</sup> www.gov.uk/government/publications/gcse-ancient-history

Assessment objectives

---

Assessment objectives – GCSE Qualifications in Ancient History

Condition GCSE(Ancient History)1.2 allows us to specify requirements relating to the objectives to be met by any assessment for GCSE Qualifications in Ancient History.

The assessment objectives set out below constitute requirements for the purposes of Condition GCSE(Ancient History)1.2. Awarding organisations must comply with these requirements in relation to all GCSE Qualifications in Ancient History they make available.

|     | Objective  | Weighting |
|-----|--|-----------|
| AO1 | Demonstrate knowledge and understanding of the key features and characteristics of the historical periods studied.   | 45%       |
| AO2 | Analyse and explain historical events and historical periods to arrive at substantiated judgements.  | 25%       |
| AO3 | Use, analyse and evaluate ancient sources within their historical context to make judgements and draw conclusions about: <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>■ historical events and historical periods studied</li><li>■ how the portrayal of events by ancient writers/sources relates to the historical contexts in which they were written/produced.</li></ul> | 30%       |

In respect of each GCSE Qualification in Ancient History which it makes available, or proposes to make available, an awarding organisation must –

- (a) ensure that the total mark for the qualification consists of –
  - (i) marks allocated to assessment objectives AO1 to AO3 in line with the weightings outlined above (the ‘subject marks’), and
  - (ii) marks used to credit the accuracy of Learners’ spelling, punctuation and grammar and their use of specialist terminology,
- (b) take all reasonable steps to ensure that the number of marks available to credit the accuracy of Learners’ spelling, punctuation and grammar and their use of specialist terminology is equal to 5 per cent of the subject marks.

Subject content (published by Department for Education)

---

Department
for Education

Ancient history

GCSE subject content

February 2016

Contents

|  |   |
|--|---|
| The content for GCSE ancient history           | 3 |
| Introduction                                   | 3 |
| Aims and objectives                            | 3 |
| Subject content                                | 4 |
| Historical knowledge, understanding and method | 5 |

The content for GCSE ancient history

Introduction

1. GCSE subject content sets out the knowledge, understanding, and skills common to all GCSE specifications in a given subject. They provide the framework within which the awarding body creates the detail of the specification.

Aims and objectives

2. GCSE specifications in ancient history should enable students to learn about the history of ancient societies in their wider context in the ancient world. The study of ancient history at GCSE should enable students to deepen their understanding of the events, people and periods studied and enable them to think critically, weigh evidence (literary and material sources from the ancient world), sift arguments, make informed decisions and develop perspective and judgement. This knowledge and the skills developed will also help them to understand the legacy of the ancient world, and provide them with the basis for further study.

3. GCSE specifications in ancient history should enable students to:

- develop and extend their knowledge and understanding of the military, political, religious, social and cultural history of the ancient world, allowing students to be able to consider the events studied within the context of the history of the ancient world
- develop the ability to ask relevant questions about the past, to investigate issues critically and to make valid historical claims by using a range of ancient sources in their historical context
- understand that ancient historians today rely on fewer sources than are available for modern history, meaning that our version of events often relies on very scarce evidence, and the resulting difficulties in reconstructing the history of the ancient world
- demonstrate their knowledge and understanding of what we believe happened in ancient times and the ancient sources to justify our belief, and reach substantiated conclusions which take into account the reliability of the available ancient sources

Subject content

4. GCSE specifications in ancient history must require students to:

- study significant events, individuals, societies, developments and issues within their broad historical contexts, which must be taken from 3000 BC to 500 AD, demonstrating both breadth (through period studies) and depth (through studying of a narrower, more specific topic)
- study a period study covering at least 50 years; a longer period study covering at least 150 years; and two depth studies. Specifications must include a rationale for the selection of topics including periods and which indicate how the following criteria for content are addressed
  - a period study must focus on a coherent medium time span of at least 50 years and require students to understand the unfolding narrative of substantial developments and issues associated with the period. A period study must cover a period of time sufficient to allow students to demonstrate understanding of the process of change. For example, a period study could focus on the Persian Wars or the Julio-Claudian emperors
  - a longer period study must require students to understand events throughout at least 150 years, including the most significant events and characteristics of different ages. They should reveal wider changes in aspects of society over time and allow comparisons to be made between different periods of history. This should include at least two aspects of the period, which may include (but are not restricted to) the following: politics, religion, science, technology and war. Through covering a much longer period of time than the shorter period and depth studies, the longer period study should help students to be able to put the events studied within GCSE into the context of the broader history of the ancient world. For example, a longer period study could focus on the rise and fall of the Roman Republic or rise and fall of the Persian Empire
  - depth studies must focus on a substantial and coherent short time span and require students to understand the complexity of a historical event or situation and the interplay of different factors which may include (but are not restricted to) military, political, religious, social, cultural and technological factors. A depth study should ensure that students will have studied the detailed historical context of the event or situation. For example, a depth study could focus on the Year of the Four Emperors or the Boudiccan Revolt
  - the period and depth studies within the specification must form a coherent and substantial study of ancient history in which each of the period and depth studies are reasonably balanced across the full range of assessed content
  - one depth study may be from the same era and geographical location as the longer period study

- study the history of at least two ancient societies, at least one of which must be Greek or Roman history. Study of each of the two ancient societies studied must be a substantial proportion of the course (each society to be a minimum of 20%)
- demonstrate how we know ancient historical events happened, by referencing the appropriate literary and material sources from the ancient world

Historical knowledge, understanding and method

5. GCSE specifications must require students to:

- demonstrate knowledge and understanding of the key features and characteristics of the periods studied, including the chronology, events, individuals, developments and the issues in the periods of ancient history they have studied
- demonstrate understanding and appropriate use of historical terms including historical concepts such as civil war, democracy, empire, imperialism, monarchy, and republic, placing these terms in the context of the periods studied
- demonstrate the ability to create their own structured arguments, selecting, organising and communicating their knowledge and understanding reaching substantiated conclusions where possible
- understand, interpret, analyse and evaluate ancient sources and events in their historical context
- demonstrate an understanding of the key features and characteristics of the periods studied, including continuity and change within ancient societies, the causes, significance and consequences of key historical events, and the similarities and differences between situations
- demonstrate an understanding of the relationships between different aspects of the period studied, making connections, drawing contrasts and analysing trends, such as between economic, political, social, cultural, religious and military history; and between short and long term timescales
- demonstrate an understanding of how we know ancient historical events happened, and analyse different kinds of ancient source material (including literary and material)
- demonstrate an understanding of the reliability of literary and/or material sources, particularly with reference to how the portrayal of events by the ancient writers/sources relates to the social, political, religious and cultural contexts in which they were written, for example the influence of mythological literature on Herodotus' writing
- produce evidence-based arguments on the key events studied using the knowledge and understanding derived from the relevant and appropriate literary and material sources from the ancient world

Department
for Education

© Crown copyright 2016

This publication (not including logos) is licensed under the terms of the Open Government Licence v3.0 except where otherwise stated. Where we have identified any third party copyright information you will need to obtain permission from the copyright holders concerned.

To view this licence:

visit www.nationalarchives.gov.uk/doc/open-government-licence/version/3

email psi@nationalarchives.gsi.gov.uk

write to Information Policy Team, The National Archives, Kew, London, TW9 4DU

About this publication:

enquiries www.education.gov.uk/contactus download www.gov.uk/government/publications

Reference: DFE-00034-2016

Follow us on Twitter:
@educationgovuk

Like us on Facebook:
facebook.com/educationgovuk

We wish to make our publications widely accessible. Please contact us at publications@ofqual.gov.uk if you have any specific accessibility requirements.

© Crown copyright 2016

This publication is licensed under the terms of the Open Government Licence v3.0 except where otherwise stated. To view this licence, visit <http://nationalarchives.gov.uk/doc/open-government-licence/version/3> or write to the Information Policy Team, The National Archives, Kew, London TW9 4DU, or email: publications@ofqual.gov.uk.

Where we have identified any third party copyright information you will need to obtain permission from the copyright holders concerned.

This publication is available at www.gov.uk/ofqual.

Any enquiries regarding this publication should be sent to us at:

Office of Qualifications and Examinations Regulation

Spring Place
Coventry Business Park
Herald Avenue
Coventry CV5 6UB

Telephone 0300 303 3344

Textphone 0300 303 3345

Helpline 0300 303 3346